

EVENT UPDATE

The Scotiabank Giller Light Bash celebrated its 10th anniversary this year and went nationwide with events in Toronto, Vancouver, Calgary, and Winnipeg. There were over 800 participants attending in the four cities and over 500 in Toronto alone, which is a new record.

The Giller Light Bash started in Toronto as a house party for a group of friends who loved books, and has now grown—with the help of Scotiabank—to be a must-attend event on the Canadian publishing scene. Guests gather to celebrate Canadian literature, watch the Giller Award live on the big screen and to cheer on the winner. Money is raised through ticket sales, raffles and Giller betting. This year, each city had its own dedicated volunteer committee working with Frontier College staff to make their city's event a success. Many thanks to those volunteers who worked so hard to pull these events together and to Scotiabank for making the 2011 Giller Light Bash bigger and better than ever.

A special shout-out to our Alumni in Guelph and Ottawa for their Scrabble®fund-raising evening.
